From St. Augustine's Confessions, Book 8, no. 10-12

... For this very thing did I sigh—to be devoted to you alone—bound as I was, not by another's irons but by my own iron will. The enemy had control of my will, and out of it he fashioned a chain and fettered me with it. For in truth lust is made out of a perverse will, and when lust is served, it becomes habit, and when habit is not resisted, it becomes necessity. By such links, joined one to another, as it were—for this reason I have called it a chain—a harsh bondage held me fast. A new will, which had begun within me, to wish freely to worship you and find joy in you, O God, the sole sure delight, was not yet able to overcome that prior will, grown strong with age. Thus, did my two wills, the one old, the other new, the first carnal, and the second spiritual, contend with one another, and by their conflict they laid waste my soul.

Thus, I understood from my own experience what I had read, how “the flesh lusts against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh.”- I was in both camps, but I was more in that which I approved within myself than in that other which I disapproved within me...Yet I was still bound to the earth, and I refused to become your soldier. - I was afraid to be lightened of all my heavy burden, even as I should have feared to be encumbered by it.

Thus, by the burdens of this world I was sweetly weighed down, just as a man often is in sleep. Thoughts wherein I meditated upon you were like the efforts of those who want to arouse themselves but, still overcome by deep drowsiness, sink back again. Just as no man would want to sleep forever, and it is the sane judgment of all men that it is better to be awake, yet a man often defers to shake off sleep when a heavy languor pervades all his members, and although the time to get up has come, he yields to it with pleasure even though it now irks him. In like manner, I was sure that it was better for me to give myself up to your love than to give in to my own desires. However, although the one way appealed to me and was gaining mastery, the other still afforded me pleasure and kept me victim. I had no answer to give to you when you said to me, “Rise, you who sleep, and arise from the dead, and Christ will enlighten you.” When on all sides you showed me that your words were true, and I was overcome by your truth, I had no answer whatsoever to make, but only those slow and drowsy words, “Right away. Yes, right away.” “Let me be for a little while.” But “Right away—right away” was never right now, and “Let me be for a little while” stretched out for a long time.

...Unhappy man that I was! Who would deliver me from the body of this death, unless your grace through Jesus Christ our Lord?

GOSPEL

Whenever the Israelites touched the rod with a snake on it in Moses' hand, they were healed. In the same way, Jesus wants everyone to be healed from sin. Clean up your bedroom. Set the table. Take out the trash. Pull the weeds from the garden. Pray for the sick on your street. When you do good things everyone will know how much you love God and everyone God made.

PRAYER

Holy Spirit, show me how to be helpful to my family and friends.
